

In this region, transcription is occurring of an open chromatin region. This is shown by the overlap in the blue and pink colors. The green is defining the entire open chromatin region. The bars in the pink are due to a statistical analysis showing that this is definitely open chromatin. We do not see data in the ncORC row because this is a coding region and there is overlap with the exon. The light purple at the top is showing where the exon is.

